Visit South Carolina’s Old 96 District

Promoting Travel in Abbeville, Edgefield, Greenwood, Laurens, and McCormick Counties

VisitOld96SC.com
OUR REGION

ABBEVILLE COUNTY
Founded in 1785 as the Abbeville District, the county today is comprised of six towns and communities, the largest of which is the historic town of Abbeville.

EDGEFIELD COUNTY
Founded in 1785, Edgefield County has played a large role in South Carolina’s history. The county is best known for having produced ten governors and five lieutenant governors.

GREENWOOD COUNTY
Located in the center of the Old 96 District, Greenwood County has an abundance of history, culture, and outdoor recreational opportunities.

LAURENS COUNTY
Laurens County began as a major intersection of travel in colonial America. The same five crossroads promoted a centralization of agriculture and textile mills in later years.

MCCORMICK COUNTY
At the doorway to the fabulous J. Strom Thurmond Lake, McCormick County offers a beautiful blend of old and new.
Experience rural beauty and Old South mystique. Discover a culture that played a significant part in shaping our country’s future and character. The Old 96 District is located in the western section of South Carolina with three of five counties bordering Georgia and several thousand miles of beautiful and pristine shoreline along South Carolina’s Freshwater Coast™.

The Palmetto tree used in South Carolina's State logo is a tribute to the palmetto logs that were used to build Ft. Moultrie on Sullivan’s Island during the Revolutionary War. It’s said to have withstood bombardment from British warships extremely well. Palmetto is a soft wood and absorbed the blows from the cannon balls.
